A Health Plan's Guide to Developing CBO Contract Scopes of Work

Introduction

Health care organizations are increasingly contracting with community-based organizations (CBOs) and Community Care Hubs (CCHs)<sup>i</sup> to address health-related social needs and provide person-centered services. CBOs are valuable strategic partners to health care organizations because of their community knowledge, the trust they have earned and their long history of delivering critical social care in people's homes and communities.

Many CBO contracts are structured as vendor contracts if for value-added services, care coordination, care navigation or community-based care management. However, as social care and other community-k services become covered benefits or formally approved as in lieu of services (ILOS) under Medicaid or k

Partnerships with Community-based Organizations: Opportunities for Health Plans to Create Value

Overview

Health care entities are increasingly recognizing the importance of addressing health-related social needs (HRSN) such as housing, food and transportation to improve health outcomes and reduce costs. Most government health care programs now require health plans and providers to identify and address members' HRSNs as part of a holistic approach to health. Health plans also understand that unmet HRSNs play a large role in health disparities and preventable health care costs.

Resource Guide

A Health Plan's Guide to Paying CBOs for Social Care

Introduction

Payment is a critical element of any contract. When negotiating the payment aspects of a contract between a health care entity and a community-based organization (CBO) or community care hub (CCH), both the amount of the payment and the payment methodology need to be considered. CBOs should keep in mind that there is no single "best" payment methodology that is appropriate in all situations.

Special Payment Considerations for CBOs:

Addresses areas that CBOs/CCHs may differ from the healthcare sector

- ✓ Differences in billing/coding standards
- ✓ Inclusion in Medical Loss can increase administrative burden
- ✓ Adaptation of non-traditional contract payment structure
- ✓ Potentially limited risk tolerance
- ✓ Allowing for evolution in payment methodology over time

Payment Models, Use Cases, and Examples:

Outlines the types, use cases, and real-world examples

- ✓ Four Major Payment Models
  - 1. Fixed Price Contract
  - 2. Fee-for-Service
  - 3. Bundled Payment
  - 4. Capitation
- ✓ Pay for Performance
  - 1. Shared Savings
  - 2. Shared Losses
  - 3. Outcome Based Payment
  - 4. Performance Bonuses

Capitation and Shared Loss Example

In Virginia, BayAging, a community care hub, contracted with a Medicaid managed care plan to provide fully delegated care management for Medicaid enrollees. Bay Aging is paid on a PMPM basis. The parties also agreed to a value-based arrangement in which the CCH would share penalties if they failed to achieve state-required metrics and compliance elements. The penalties, which would be imposed by the state Medicaid agency, started at $1,000 for the first occurrence and increased in 5 percent increments for subsequent occurrences.

BayAging was responsible for achieving state-directed measures, including care plan development, documentation of discussion of person-centered care goals, reduction in all-cause hospital readmissions and vaccine administration.

When to use:

Capitation may be appropriate when the CBO

Operationalizing Contracts: How Payers Can Improve

Collaboration with Community-Based Organizations

Resource Guide Operationalizing Contracts: How Payers Can Improve Collaboration with Community-Based Organizations There is tremendous opportunity to create shared value when health plans and community-based organizations (CBOs) build Collaborative relationships to address health-related social needs (HRSNs).

here is tremendous opportunity to create shared value when health plans and community-based organizations (CBOS) build collaborative relationships to address health-related social need; HRISNS, However, differences in organizational infrastructure and culture can complicate the development and implementation of successful partnerships, in some cases leading to protracted contracting, misalignment or duplication of services, and insufficient collaboration.<sup>8, 10</sup>

To address these challenges, this resource outlines recommended practices across the lifecycle of partnership development between health care organizations and CBOs. The brief is written for health plans, though other health care organizations, including accountable care organizations (ACOs), clinically integrated networks and others engaged in value-based payment strategies, may benefit from its wide range of practical strategies for all parties involved to optimize the partnership. No single partnership is expected to use all of these strategies, but any partnership can employ many of these tools to anticipate, avoid and respond to common challenges that arise when CBOs, community care hubs (CCHs, or hubs)<sup>17</sup> and payers set out to work together.<sup>18</sup>

A companion piece to Operationalizing contracts: Methods payers can employ to collaborate with community-based organizations

Participants

Joint operating committee (JOC) meetings are an opportunity to convene interdisciplinary stakeholders.

As payer and CBO staff are planning JOC meetings, they should think about including individuals who can thoughtfully contribute to conversations and decisions around agenda items. This may look slightly different for each

Core team participant list

- Administrative leads
- Programmatic leads

Additional participants as needed

- Frontline staff
- Medical leadership
- Executive sponsors
- Community care hub (CCH) staff
- Community care nub (CCH) start

- Data and analytics
